ORGANIZATION HEADS

The executive committee for the preparedness parade reiterates a statement already published-that it has been impossible formally to invite every organization in Washington.

The committee takes this means anew to invite every organization of a non-political character in the District of Columbia. This statement is to avoid any misunderstanding on this score. Entry blanks may be found in this issue of The Star. If organization heads have not filled out blank or mailed a letter to the preparedness parade committee, Board of Trade rooms, Star building, do so at Military Service Legion to March.

The Military Service Legion of the District of Columbia decided yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the council held in the Woodward building to march in the preparedness parade on June 14. This organization is composed of men who served in the independent military organizations of the District of Columbia, the 1st D. C. Infantry, U. S. Volunteers, in the Spanish war, and honorably discharged members of the United States Army, Navy and Marine Corps and U. S. volunteers who are now residents of the district.

A meeting of all interested will be held tomorrow night at $30 o'clock, at room 406, National Guard Armory on L street between 4th and 5th streets, to perfect arrangements for the parade, according to Col. R. D. Simms, president of the legion.

The legion is desirous of having all honorably discharged soldiers residing in the District and eligible to membership on account of their military service, and who are not parading as members of other organizations to parade June 14. This organization is composed

The task of turning this most ancient and backward of kingdoms into a republic, within whose confines there was a fifth of the world's inhabitants—a republic four times as large as the United States—was obviously no easy one, and the man who attempted it did not escape storms of criticism from those who held that he was a dictator, virtually founding a new dynasty. But among foreigners generally Yuan Shi-Kai was widely known abroad he had been accepted by the Manchus, the Chinese and the foreigners in China as a coming man.

Son of District Governor.

Born in 1559, the son of a district governor in the complex of the case of the man who attempted it did not escape storms of criticism from those who held that he was a dictator, virtually founding a new dynasty. But among foreigners generally Yuan Shi-Kai was given credit for as able an administration as could be expecte into line as citizens of the new re-it is leaders would prove to him their contention that those of their sect were immune to foreign bullets.

He told them he had one of the foreign guns in his own house and that if the leaders would meet him in his garden the next day he would stand them up against the wall and try the "foreign devils' magic" on them. If the bullets did not hurt, Yuan would become a Boxer. So sublime was the faith of one leader that he submitted to the test, and, according to the story, fell dead at the first rife bullet, which is plerced his heart. Yuan Shi Kai was thus freed from any obligation to join the fanatic movement of the Boxers. As a matter of fact, he was given credit for material assistance to the foreigners during the warfare which the allies waged in China.

Dictator After Revolution. With the death of the empress dowager and the Emperor Kuang Hsu, almost coincidently, and possibly each by child emperor Hsun Tung came to the throne under the regency of Prince Chun, Yuan, presumably because he had gained such a control of the army, was dismissed in disgrace, although nomi-Haimhausen, counselors for the embassy, have made their summer homes in other cottages.

Chine's New Chief E.

When the anti-Manchu rebellion broke out, in October, 1911, the Manchu regency, in despair, urged Yuan to return. The latter replied that his leg was not yet well, but when given authority as supreme commander of all forces of the north he accepted. He also became the first premier of the "responsible cabinet," which the regency offered the rebels as a concession of the Manchu rulers was forced, and the boy empeor, at the dictation of Yuan Shi Kai, authorized the premier to organize with the rebel leaders at Nanking a republican form of government.

Sun Yat Sen, the provisional president of the Southern rebels, was forced to retire, and Yuan Shi Kai was elected provisional president of the Chinese republic at Nanking February 15, 1912. He took the oath of office at Peking the following month. nally on pretext of "curing a sore leg."

been in sympathy with the rebel movement, although little has been heard of his activities in recent months. The State Department at Washington was advised May 17 that he had been elected president of four seceding provinces in southern China.

Li Yuan Hung is fifty-two years old. He served on a cruiser during the Chino-Japanese war, and later entered the army, holding several commands and spending two years in Japan to study fortifications. On the outbreak of the revolution at Wuchang he was coerced into accepting command of the revolutionary forces, whose operations he directed. He was mainly instrumental in arranging the Shanghai peace conference, and after the abdication of the Manchus was elected vice president and appointed chief of the general staff. He was made a general, and in October, 1913, was re-elected vice president.
